Great Nicobar Project: Shri Bhupender Yadav defends environmental clearance

New Delhi, June 1

Hon'ble Minister of Environment, Forest and Climate Change, Shri Bhupender Yadav last week rejected allegations by Congress MP, Shri Jairam Ramesh that the statutory environmental clearances granted to the Great Nicobar Island (GNI) Project were based on studies that relied on inadequate baseline data.

In a written response to the Congress MP's May 10 letter, he asserted that concerns raised on environmental impact assessment, biodiversity impacts have 'already been examined in detail during the 'statutory appraisal and subsequent judicially mandated review process'.

In his response dated May 27,

Shri Yadav said that environmental appraisal of the project was undertaken in a 'comprehensive and multi-tiered manner in accordance with the Environment Impact Assessment Notification, 2006, the Island Coastal Regulation Zone Notification (ICRZ), 2019, and other applicable provisions.

The GNI project will span 166 sq km and include a transshipment container port, an international military-civilian use airport, power infrastructure, and a greenfield coastal city. It will require felling of 13,000 hectares of pristine forest on the ecologically sensitive islands.

Shri Ramesh urged the Government to make public the report of the National Green Tribunal (NGT) mandated High-Powered Committee (HPC), tasked with revisiting the project's environmental clearances.

Minister cites detailed environmental studies

In his reply, Yadav defended the project appraisal process and cited the detailed environmental studies, shoreline assessments, marine investigations and modelling exercises undertaken by reputed institutions such as Zoological Survey of India (ZSI), Botanical Survey of India (BSI), Salim Ali Centre for Ornithology and Natural History (SACON) and Wildlife Institute of India (WII).

Regarding multi-season EIA studies, the Hon'ble Minister stated that while primary field data were collected over a single seasonal cycle, the analysis was integrated with long-term historical datasets maintained by reputed institutions, which, he said, possess decades of ecological research experience in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

On the allegation that norms for carrying out comprehensive studies in low or medium-eroding stretches, including Galathea Bay, where a transshipment port is planned, Shri Yadav said this requirement was not met as Galathea's eastern flank is stable.

"The shoreline change assessment carried out by NCSCM using six time-series satellite datasets over a 17-year period concluded that the eastern flank of Galathea Bay, where the proposed port is located, is predominantly stable to moderately accreting due to offshore sheet rock formations and favourable sediment deposition patterns," he said.

He also sought to point out that the NGT examined the environmental studies and baseline data issues in its February 16 judgment.

On the confidentiality of the HPC report, a key appeal in Shri Ramesh's letter, the Hon'ble Minister maintained that the report contains information of strategic, defence and national importance, and that certain details were therefore exempt under Section 8(1)(a) of the Right to Information Act, 2005, which exempts disclosure of information that may prejudicially affect the sovereignty, security, strategic or scientific interests of the state.

On biodiversity, Shri Yadav said the project had been examined in detail with respect to corals, leatherback turtles, megapodes, shoreline stability, marine ecology and tribal welfare by expert institutions as well as by the Expert Appraisal Committee and the HPC.

Citing the NGT's February order, Shri Yadav said it observed that adequate safeguards and monitoring mechanisms had been incorporated, and further recognised the project as one of strategic, defence and national importance, observing that projects of larger public and national interest cannot be denied solely on apprehensions where adequate mitigation and conservation measures have been incorporated.
