New Delhi, Aug. 6

The Union Cabinet today approved GOBARdhan, the National Circular Bioenergy Scheme, with a total outlay of 23,731 crore rupees. Briefing media in New Delhi this afternoon, Information and Broadcasting Minister, Shri Ashwini Vaishnaw said this will create 1.5 lakh jobs. GOBARdhan marks a defining moment in India's clean energy journey. It will transform the country's abundant agricultural residue, cattle dung, press mud, municipal organic waste and other biomass resources into clean fuel, organic manure, rural income and national economic value.

The Scheme will be implemented from 2026-27 to 2035-36 and will establish Compressed Biogas as a major pillar of India's future energy mix. The Scheme aims to increase domestic Compressed Biogas, CBG production nearly ten-fold, mobilize large-scale private investment and create a vibrant circular bioeconomy across the country. ## SECI Invites EoIs for Geothermal Energy in Andaman & Nicobar Islands

Background and Context

The Solar Energy Corporation of India (SECI) has officially invited Expressions of Interest (EoIs) for the assessment and development of geothermal energy resources in the Union Territory of Andaman & Nicobar Islands. This move is part of a broader national strategy to achieve energy security in India's remote island territories, which currently rely heavily on expensive and polluting diesel-based power generation. By exploring geothermal energy, the Government aims to provide a stable, 24/7 baseload power supply that is independent of weather fluctuations.

Key Details

The primary objective of this EoI is to identify potential geothermal sites and assess the feasibility of large-scale power generation within the Andaman & Nicobar archipelago. The submission deadline for interested parties is set for September 18, 2026. While the specific capacity targets have not been disclosed in this initial phase, the project represents a significant shift in India's renewable energy exploration, moving into niche, high-potential technologies. The Andaman & Nicobar region, characterized by its unique geological positioning, presents a promising landscape for geothermal exploration, which is a relatively untapped sector in the Indian renewable energy market.

What This Means for EPCs and Developers

For EPC contractors and renewable energy developers, this EoI offers an entry point into a specialized segment of the energy market. Geothermal projects require highly technical expertise in drilling, reservoir engineering, and power plant integration. Developers with experience in international geothermal markets or those looking to diversify their portfolios will find this a unique opportunity to establish a footprint in a government-backed pilot project. Successful assessment of these resources could lead to future EPC contracts for plant construction and long-term operations and maintenance (O&M) services in the region.

What Happens Next

Following the submission of EoIs on September 18, 2026, SECI is expected to evaluate the technical capabilities of the respondents. The next phase will likely involve detailed site surveys and the issuance of a formal Request for Proposal (RfP) for developers to undertake exploratory drilling and pilot plant development. As India continues to scale its renewable energy sector, the integration of geothermal power will be a critical component in achieving the nation's net-zero targets, particularly for off-grid and island-based energy systems that require consistent, non-intermittent power sources.
