New Delhi, Mar. 10 (PIB)

The Union Cabinet chaired by the Hon'ble Prime Minister, Shri Narendra Modi today has approved Ministry of Jal Shakti's proposal to restructure and reorient the implementation of the Jal Jeevan Mission (JJM) from infrastructure creation to a service delivery, supported by drinking water governance and institutional ecosystem for sustainable rural piped potable water supply.

For restructuring JJM focussing on structural reforms, Cabinet has approved enhancement of total outlay to Rs. 8.69 lakh crore with total central assistance of Rs. 3.59 lakh crore enhancing from Rs. 2.08 lakh crore approved in 2019-20 i.e. additional central share of Rs. 1.51 lakh crore.

To this end, a uniform national digital framework, namely "Sujalam Bharat", shall be instituted, under which every village shall be assigned a unique Sujal Gaon / Service Area ID, digitally mapping the complete drinking water supply system from source to tap. For ensuring transparency and accountability the involvement of GPs and VWSCs in the commissioning and formal handover of schemes through "Jal Arpan".

A Gram Panchayat shall certify completion of works and declare itself "Har Ghar Jal" only upon confirmation that adequate in-village operation and maintenance mechanisms have been established by the State Government. Recognizing that community ownership and participation are critical for operational efficiency and source sustainability, the programme shall promote "Jal Utsav" as an annual, community-led maintenance and review event, integrating local cultural ethos while reinforcing collective responsibility for drinking water secure future.

From the baseline of 3.23 crore (17%) rural households with tap water connections in 2019, so far, more than 12.56 crore additional rural households have been provided with tap water connections under JJM. At present, out of 19.36 crore rural households identified by the States/UTs in the country, around 15.80 crore (81.61%) households are reported to have tap water connections as on date.

Beyond the physical achievements, impacts of JJM have been assessed by reputed national and international institutions/individuals. SBI Research reported that JJM has freed 9 crore women from fetching water, enabling greater participation in other economic activities. World Health Organisation (WHO) estimated reduction in women drudgery by saving of 5.5 crore hours daily, prevention of 400,000 diarrheal deaths, and savings of 14 million Disability Adjusted Life Years (DALYs). Nobel laureate Prof. Michael Kremer estimated a potential of 30% reduction in under-five mortality, saving 1,36,000 lives annually;

EXPLAINED: Why the Andaman Basin is Emerging as a New Regional Energy Frontier

Deepwater gas exploration gains momentum across the Andaman Sea

The Andaman basin is rapidly emerging as one of Asia's most closely watched offshore energy frontiers. Long considered geologically promising but commercially uncertain, the basin is now witnessing renewed exploration activity across several countries bordering the Andaman Sea - notably India, Indonesia and Thailand. Fresh gas discoveries, new licensing rounds and rising regional energy demand are together reshaping the basin's strategic importance.

Unlike many offshore energy regions, the Andaman basin is not confined to a single national jurisdiction. It forms part of a broader geological system stretching across the eastern Indian Ocean and linking waters off India's Andaman and Nicobar Islands with offshore regions of Myanmar, Thailand and Indonesia. Because of this shared geological structure, discoveries or exploration developments in one part of the basin often increase interest across the wider region. Indonesian discovery momentum

The strongest commercial momentum in the basin currently lies in Indonesian waters. Abu Dhabi-based Mubadala Energy has made significant discoveries in the South Andaman block offshore North Sumatra. The company announced a major gas discovery at the Layaran-1 well in 2023, followed by another discovery at the Tangkulo-1 well in 2024. Industry observers believe these discoveries could represent one of Southeast Asia's most important recent deepwater gas finds. Mubadala has since expanded its presence in the basin through additional exploration licences, including the Central Andaman block where Harbour Energy serves as operator. The discoveries have helped transform perceptions of the Andaman basin from a high-risk frontier into an emerging gas province. Development planning for these discoveries is now being examined, raising the possibility that commercial production in the Indonesian section of the basin could begin later in the decade. Indonesia's success has also reinforced the idea that the broader Andaman basin may contain significant hydrocarbon resources, encouraging exploration interest from neighbouring countries.

India exploration push

India is now intensifying exploration in its section of the basin around the Andaman and Nicobar Islands. The offshore waters near the islands have long been regarded as geologically promising but remain relatively underexplored because of deepwater conditions and the high cost of drilling.

The Directorate General of Hydrocarbons has offered several Andaman basin blocks under recent Open Acreage Licensing Policy rounds, covering large offshore areas. State-run exploration companies Oil and Natural Gas Corporation (ONGC) and Oil India Limited are preparing to expand IIM Bangalore & International Labour Organisation (ILO) estimated generation of 59.9 lakh direct and 2.2 crore indirect person-years of potential employment, strengthening rural livelihoods through JJM. Women and the girl child have emerged as the principal beneficiaries of this intervention, with substantial gains in terms of reduced drudgery, improved health and hygiene, enhanced dignity, and greater opportunities for education and livelihood activities.

JJM 2.0 would facilitate the certification of all Gram Panchayats as 'Har Ghar Jal', by provisioning tap water connection to all the 19.36 Crore rural households across the country by December 2028 while ensuring adherence to timelines, scheme sustainability, and delivery of citizen-centric water services through Separate MoUs with State/UTs. JJM 2.0 also fosters the vision of Viksit Bharat @2047 with assured 24x7 rural drinking water supply by shifting from infrastructure-centric approach to a citizen-centric utility-based service delivery approach through Structural Reforms.

With Whole of Government approach, Strategic convergence among various Departments at Government of India level for sustainable and long-term operation and maintenance of rural water supply infrastructure and scheme source sustenance has also been envisaged under Jal Jeevan Mission 2.0.

drilling activity in these offshore regions.

In 2025, India reported the presence of natural gas during drilling in the Andaman basin near Sri Vijaya Puram. While further appraisal is required to determine the commercial scale of the discovery, the find has strengthened expectations that the basin may contain sizeable gas resources.

India is also exploring technical collaborations with global energy companies to support deepwater exploration campaigns in the region. Given the high capital requirements and complex geology involved in offshore drilling, partnerships with international firms are likely to play an important role in developing the basin.

Thailand exploration plans

Thailand has also begun turning its attention toward the Andaman Sea as it looks to secure future domestic energy supplies. The country's existing gas reserves in the Gulf of Thailand are gradually declining, prompting policymakers to consider new exploration opportunities.

Thai authorities have indicated plans to open petroleum exploration blocks in the Andaman Sea in the coming years. Although exploration activity in Thailand's section of the basin remains at an early stage, the move signals that the Andaman Sea is becoming a broader regional energy focus rather than a frontier limited to one or two countries.

Myanmar also lies within the wider geological arc of the Andaman basin, and the country already hosts major offshore gas projects in the Rakhine basin. While Myanmar's projects are geographically distinct, they form part of the broader energy system surrounding the Andaman Sea.

Regional energy stakes

Several key players are now shaping the emerging energy landscape of the Andaman basin. Mubadala Energy currently stands out as one of the most active explorers due to its discoveries in Indonesian waters. Harbour Energy is another important participant through its operating role in the Central Andaman block.

On the Indian side, ONGC and Oil India remain the principal exploration companies, supported by the Directorate General of Hydrocarbons and the Union Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Gas. If exploration success continues, international energy majors could also become more involved in the basin.

The most likely outcome for the Andaman basin is the emergence of a gas-focused energy province rather than a rapid oil boom. Current discoveries in the Indonesian sector are primarily gas fields, and early indications from India's exploration activities also point toward natural gas resources.

However, the development of the basin is expected to unfold gradually. Deepwater offshore projects require complex drilling operations, substantial capital investment and extensive infrastructure development. Even after discoveries are confirmed, it often takes several years before production begins.

Nevertheless, the Andaman basin is steadily moving from geological curiosity to strategic energy zone. As exploration expands across India, Indonesia and Thailand, the region could eventually become an important contributor to Asia's natural gas supply.

For India in particular, developments in the basin carry both economic and strategic significance. Any large-scale discoveries near the Andaman and Nicobar Islands would not only strengthen domestic energy security but also reinforce the islands' importance in India's wider maritime and economic strategy in the eastern Indian Ocean.
