PMEGP Scheme- opening new vistas for women

Making the most of what's available: A woman entrepreneur's inspirational journey

Port Blair, Oct. 18

Today, most women are empowered and have lot of things going on for them. They have access to education and are enlightened, opened their own businesses, become successful and accomplished a lot of other amazing things. When you help invest in their business, you help them actualize their dreams and allow them to be self-sustaining. This is the story of a woman whose commitment to be self-sustainable led her to set up her own Bamboo Handicrafts Unit. Meet Smti. Sangeetha, R/o Ferrargunj, South Andaman, who, inspired by the growing demand of handicrafts, left no stone unturned to get herself trained for the trade.

As we know, the Indian way of life is full of products made with the help of simple, indigenous tools by craftsmen who belong within the strong fabric of tradition, culture, aesthetic sense and artistry, the range of handicrafts is as diverse as the country's cultural diversity. Looking at the growing demand of handicrafts and considering the abundant of raw materials available locally, Smti. Sangeetha decided to have a unit of her own in the line of manufacturing of bamboo handicrafts.

The initial skill development training for a duration of six months imparted by another KVIB assisted beneficiary, Smti. Baby encouraged Sangeetha to set up such unit of her own at Ferrargunj, South Andaman, duly availing financial assistance under PMEGP was able to employ two more persons in her unit, thereby creating employment opportunities for others too.

The finished products of her unit are being sold through KG Bhavan, private shops and exhibitions being organized by Govt. Departments and NGOs from time to time at different places of A&N Islands. This work not only enabled her to lead a prosperous life but also provided strength to have a say in family decisions. (Source: A&NI KVIB)
