C&AG portrays Islands as the gateway to South East Asia

Lauds the Development in recent years

K. Biju Nair

Port Blair, Dec 21
Shri Shashi Kant Sharma, the 12th Comptroller & Auditor General of India was on a visit to the Islands last week. He belongs to the 1976 batch of IAS (Bihar Cadre) and has wide experience in the field of public administration, financial services and infrastructure development. Before leaving the Island shores, which happens to be his 5th visit, the CAG in an interview to 'The Daily Telegrams' last evening spoke exclusively on the sea change he noticed in the Islands compared to his earlier visit to Andamans 2-3 years back. In a nutshell, the Officer finds the islands as most fascinating and outstanding part of India. This passion forced him to speak his mind on gamut of developments which have taken place in the city of Port Blair and other part of the Islands, with particular reference to Havelock & Neil. The C&AG's observation primarily centred around the distinct change he witnessed in road connectivity, improvement in traffic arrangement, cleanliness, improvement in medical facilities with the opening of medical college, medical insurance, starting of degree college, frequency in flight service and above all, the friendly approach of the people and the A&N Administration. The Islands are gradually taking shape as a small metropolis and in the years to come this will put the Islands on world map. Mentioning that the Islands represent the national ethos of the country, he opined that it played a distinct role in the country's freedom movement. The Cellular Jail is a mute witness of the torturous years, the freedom fighters of the country had to undergo. The Islands also showcase the spirit of India, as people from different parts of the country cutting across language, linguistic and religion barriers live in perfect harmony and peace. Shri Shashi Kant served as narrated the Islands as strategically very important for India and went on to say that it is the gateway to South East Asia in terms of economic progress and security. These Islands very much add to the policy of GoI of looking towards South East Asia, he said adding that this importance will only grow in the future. He further said, he has the feeling that the whole machinery of A&N Administration is now geared up to take up bigger challenges for growth and prosperity of the Islands. Stating that economic progress is very critical, the C&AG felt that development should be done keeping in view the environmental issues. He mentioned that his advise
