Making A&N Islands a digitally empowered society

IT Department initiates number of e-services to facilitate citizens

Approval accorded for installation of 124 Mobile Towers in 87 uncovered Islands

Staff Reporter

Port Blair, Jan. 3

The Administration is implementing the vision of 'Digital India' programme to transform A&N Islands into a digitally empowered society and knowledge economy for the benefit of the citizens of these Islands. The IT Department of A&N Administration through SOVTECH (a society registered under A & N Administration) has taken up a number of initiatives which include development of end to end computerization of Government Services under e-District project, benefitting a number of citizens especially during this pandemic period.

With the commissioning of the Chennai- Andaman & Nicobar Islands Submarine Optical Fibre Project (CAN-SMC), the telecom bandwidth now available between Chennai-Port Blair is 200 Gbps and 100 Gbps between Port Blair and remaining locations within the Island.

Meanwhile, the Telecom Commission under the chairmanship of Secretary (T) has approved the project for installing 124 Mobile Towers for extending telecom coverage to 87 uncovered Islands and for seamless coverage along National Highway from Port Blair to Diglipur to be funded by Universal Service Obligation Fund, Department of Telecom, Govt. of India. The tender has been finalized and the final purchase order is expected to be issued shortly.

Another important project undertaken by IT

Department was the setting up of State Wide Area Network which is one of the Core Project under Digital India Programme of Government of India to provide safe, secure, reliable and high-speed connectivity to Government Departments for accessing various applications hosted in State Data Center. The project is 100% funded by Government of India. In A & N Islands, as on date, about 250 Government Offices/ Police Stations/ CSCs are connected through the SWAN network which has 19 Point of Presence covering all major inhabited Islands.

The network has also facility for video conference between Port Blair and all Administrative Units (Deputy Commissioner, N&M Andaman & Car Nicobar/ Assistant Commissioners Rangat / Diglipur /Little Andaman/ Kamorta/ Campbell Bay. Creation of repository of all seasonal sources of water Island Water Resource Research Centre established at DBRAIT

Grey Water Treatment Unit being developed by Civil Engineering Deptt.

Port Blair, Jan. 3

The A&N Islands receive copious rainfall to the tune of over 3000 mm per year, but the geographical location of the Islands in the equatorial region facilitates high rate of evaporation. Further, if monsoon is delayed, the water in the reservoirs or in the surface water bodies dries up adding to water scarcity and depletion of water sources. Paucity of favourable catchments, negative departure from the normal rainfall in succession and receding monsoon adds to curtailment of water supply especially from the springs or spring fed streams. Further, surface water as well as rain water resources could not be developed optimally due to various climatologic and environmental reasons. In addition to above, the ground water potential in the Islands has been found sub optimal due to various hydro-geological reasons.

Proposed Karotar-Grey Water Treatment Unit

In recent years, it has been observed that, due to recession of monsoon and climate change there is an acute shortage of fresh water during the post monsoon period (January to May) in Andaman & Nicobar Islands. Since the Islands do not have many perennial source of water such as rivers etc., it is essential that a repository is created of all the seasonal sources and updated by carrying out research and scientific study so that the water resource management can be planned and implemented. Therefore, the need for Island Water Resources Research Centre (IWRRC) was envisaged and it has been established by Civil Engineering Department of Dr. B. R. Ambedkar Institute of Technology (DBRAIT) at its premises.

The mandate of IWRRC includes collection of Island-wise data of surface and ground water sources and preparing GIS (Geographical Information System) map for all Panchayats and Tribal areas; identifying probable and potential sources and suggesting strategic water harvesting methods as per Hydro-Geological data; qualitative & quantitative assessment of potential sources; water quantity assessment for population, irrigation and livestock etc.

COVID-19 Vaccine Roll Out
Mock Drill on COVID19 Vaccine administration held in all States and UTs at 286 session sites spread across 125 districts

Around 1,14,100 vaccinators trained

New Delhi, Jan. 3 (PIB) India continues to scale several peaks in its fight against the COVID-19 pandemic. As the country readies for the COVID-19 vaccine roll-out, the Union Ministry of Health & Family Welfare (MoHFW) has been pro-actively involved in the preparations for this roll-out over the past couple of months to ensure that the preparations for roll-out of COVID-19 vaccine are on track, in close collaboration with the States/UTs and other stakeholders. In a massive nation-wide exercise today, an end-to-end mock drill on the vaccine administration was conducted yesterday in all States and UTs at 286 session sites spread across 125 districts. Each District conducted the dry run at three sites or more which included a public health facility (District Hospital/Medical College), Private Health Facility, and rural or urban outreach sites. All the State & District officials were trained on the Operational Guidelines and for conducting the dry-run.

Island Water Resource Research ...

In addition to this, as part of Swachh Bharat Abhiyan and Jal Jeevan Abhiyan, Grey Water Assessment has also been taken into scope of work of IWRR. Under this project, a low cost Grey Water Treatment Unit for rural household is being developed by research and trial in Civil Engineering Department of DBRAIT. The treated grey water meeting the required standards can be used for irrigation purpose.

The proposed grey water treating unit named "Karotar", means filter, is being developed by IWRR team. Presently, the grey water is being tested with various trails using locally available filter medium so that the treated water meets the required parameters, for irrigation water, as suggested by the standards.

The Karotar filter, for grey water, will be used to sensitize the rural households so that with frugal means the units can be developed and the discharge so produced by the unit can be diverted and used as irrigation water through furrows to kitchen garden or orchards. This will help to prevent the contamination of soil and water sources by grey water and thereby preserving the bio-diversity and green environment in rural areas of the Islands.

The IWRR has already completed the GIS mapping of 30% of Panchayats in South Andaman District. The mandated database for the entire 70 Panchayats and Tribal areas will be prepared by next year. Presently, the IWRR research work is being funded by Technical Education Quality Improvement Program (TEQIP)-III project, under Andaman & Nicobar Administration. Further, NABRAD (National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development) has also assured to support the research work.

The IWRR is also coordinating with INIs (Institutes of National Importance) viz. IITs, NITs and CGWB etc and ISRO for guidance and support in implementing the mandate. The final year students of Diploma and Degree program of Civil Engineering Department of DBRAIT are actively involved in primary data collection for research and creating database of all water resources for the entire Islands which can be used as Management Information System (MIS) for future planning and development.

The readiness of water source database will help to plan and manage the water harvesting structure. Thus, copious surface run off getting lost in sea can be properly managed to cater the water requirement of our Islands.

Further, various anticipated climatic changes like recession of monsoon leading to depletion of fresh water sources, both surface and sub surface, can be handled with suitable water harvesting measures supported by hydro-geological studies. Therefore creation of scientific data base and developing island-wise water resource management plan by IWRR will help to cater the future demand and support planning developmental activities.
